

LonghaulTracker

Symptom tracking made easy

Track & Discuss Longhaul Symptoms

The first longhaul-focused app that helps track and report chronic and rare illnesses in real-time. Start tracking symptoms and improve your discussions with your healthcare team!

Olivia has been a 'longhailer' for years, as have many in the Tick-borne Disease community space, which many have a hard time understanding. Now that the term 'longhailer' has become more mainstream since the onset of the pandemic in 2020, our hope with providing this free app is to assist everyone experiencing longhaul symptoms with their ongoing conversations with their healthcare providers and their personal support systems. We at the LivLyme Foundation, truly believe you when you say, "These are the symptoms I'm experiencing and have experienced for months/years." Our belief is that through the combination of sharing your journey and data collected along the way that we can make your world, our world, a healthier and happier place.
